Dr. M. J. Fisher Speaks At ESSC Commencement

"YOU face a rapidly changing and uncertain society — but one that is exciting and that offers opportunity unlimited to the alert, wide-awake person," the 164 graduates of the East Stroudsburg State College were told yesterday by Dr. Marguerite J. Fisher, featured speaker at the ESSC commencement exercises.

Dr. Fisher, who is professor of political science at Syracuse University, contrasted the world the graduates today will encounter with the one she did as a B.A. from Smith College, "not so very long ago." "Things were relatively static then," she recalled, "but they never will be again. I can promise you nothing but change, change, and more change."

She named five points that social scientists and psychologists list for the "prevention of ulcers, mental breakdowns, and other troubles of our times."

Point one is that you must face the fact that the world won't quiet down again — and that change will become the natural order; point two is the advice to try not to be perfectionists, for that way leads to breakdowns. Three — read more history, for history is a great comforter; four — serve a larger cause in order to find happiness in your own life, and five — develop emotional outlets that are not practical, perhaps, but are enjoyable.

Dr. Fisher, who is a world traveler, and has spent a great deal of time in Russia and the iron curtain countries, told several stories illustrating how important "everything American is to the world."

"Other countries, especially those behind the Russian veil," she said, "follow every action, every crime, every good thing that is done over here. It is almost unbelievable the interest they have in us and in everything we do. This, of course, means that we should be affirmative, and always put our best works forward."

Degrees Conferred

The graduates were divided into three groups — 44 receiving a B.S. in Elementary Education; 58 receiving a B.S. in Secondary Education and 62 a B.S. in Health Education.

Dr. Francis B. McGarry presented the candidates for degrees and president LeRoy J. Koehler performed the "conferment of degrees." Dr. Eugene Powers introduced each candidate of the elementary and secondary curricula, and Dr. Frank Sills introduced the Health Education candidates.

Monsignor Thomas J. Cawley delivered the invocation and the benediction. The college choir sang three numbers; Cassandra Febbo and Carl Sloat were featured soloists.

Holland Award

Dale R. Dexeimer was given the Leah K. and Benjamin Holland Award in social studies, for outstanding scholarship in the field of social studies.

Police Fight Gun Duel

BERLIN (AP)—East and West Berlin police fought a tomy-gun duel across the Spandau Canal in midtown Berlin Sunday over a red-upee trying to escape to the West. The refugee was fatally wounded.

Gunfire from the East Berlin police felled the refugee before he could get through the barbed wire on the East Bank of the canal, and he was carried away by Communist border guards.

The East German Interior Ministry announced later he had died in a hospital.

The East German statement said British troops joined the West German police at the canal site but it did not say the British fired.

The statement called the shooting incident a "new, prepared and dangerous provocation from West Berlin, in connection with the attempt of a criminal element to break through the national frontier by force."

It was the second gun duel in five days. An East German border guard was killed and another wounded Wednesday in an exchange of fire with West Berlin police who were protecting a boy swimming to freedom. The boy, 15, badly wounded, made it to the west bank.

West police said about 60 shots had been fired by both sides in Sunday's incident. There were no reports of any other casualties besides the refugee.

In another incident, three West Berliners said East Berlin guards had fired at them across the Spree River about 500 yards south of the refugee's escape attempt site. The Soviet and British sectors in the area are separated by narrow streams.

Carpenter Rejects Idea Of Fatigue At A Press Conference In Florida

Discover Surplus Food

MORE THAN 270 pounds of federal government surplus food was discovered Saturday less than five feet off a road from Route 115 to Gilbert, near Saylorsburg.

Monroe County Commissioner John R. Lesoine was notified and he conducted a preliminary investigation, before having the foodstuff transported to Monroe County Courthouse where it will be stored until FBI agents arrive to make their investigation.

Included in the surplus food found were five, three pound bags of oatmeal; 24, two pound bags of dry beans; 19, two pound containers of rice; 20, four and one-half pound boxes of dried milk, and 18 bags of flour.

Lesoine said, "I opened one bag of flour and found that it was fresh, and did not contain any worms. We (the commissioners) will meet tomorrow (Monday) and request the FBI to come in to make a complete investigation of this and of the swapping of surplus food for other articles."

He added, "I found several clues that might lead to the person dumping the food along the road. These I will turn over to the FBI."

The surplus food is a federal government undertaking. The food distributed comes from the federal to the local government for its distribution.

One of the ideas in back of the program is to give the surplus to families with low income so that the money they would spend on this type of food can be used to purchase other foods that are vital to the health and well being of the body.

The person or persons involved in discarding the food, in addition to penalties levied by the federal government, are subject to the $100 litter fine levied by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Investigators Indicate

Passenger Took Bomb Aboard Ill-Fated Continental Jet

CENTERVILLE, Iowa (AP) — Federal investigators conferred for 90 minutes Sunday amid growing indications they were concentrating on the possibility a bomb was carried aboard a Continental Airlines jet which broke up and crashed Tuesday night, killing 45 persons.

W. Mark Felt, head of an FBI team on the scene, said the FBI is "conducting a full and extensive investigation to determine whether there had been violation of the aircraft destruction law." Several persons were heavily injured.

The Civil Aeronautics Board said Saturday an unknown explosive force from within had ripped apart the $5.5-million plane five minutes after its last radio contact and after it had passed some thunderstorms.

Felt would not say the FBI believed a bomb or other device had been carried aboard the big 707 jet. But one source who declined to be identified said it appeared unlikely the explosion could have resulted from anything other than a bomb.

The four-engine plane began to disintegrate, trailing debris as it lost altitude from 39,000 feet.

Some fragments carried by high winds aloft drifted back 60 miles along the doomed craft's flight path.

Lightweight material, including paper napkins and a seat cover, were found as far away as Mechanicsville, 140 miles northeast of the main crash scene near the Iowa-Missouri border.

The main portion of the tail section was found within 10 miles of the fuselage, which fell in an alfalfa field near Unionville, Mo., 12 miles southwest of here.

Felt said the FBI started its investigation in view of CAB's opinion that the crash was caused by an explosive force within the plane and in the light of statements by Robert F. Six, Continental's president.

Six said in Denver, the airlines' headquarters, there is sufficient evidence to indicate a man-made explosive was set off within the aircraft.

It was learned the CAB has ordered a new and detailed study of the route and timetable followed by the 707, en route from Chicago to Kansas City, its next scheduled stop.

Authorities also indicated that a complete and detailed study is under way into the background of all 37 passengers and 8 crew members who lost their lives.

Edward E. Slattery, CAB public information officer, said it may be several days before a report is available from Washington, D.C., on a laboratory analysis of wreckage and victims' skin scrapings which had little penetrations in them.

Catholic Priests Blamed For Strikes In Spain

By HAROLD K. MILKS

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Gen. Francisco Franco laid part of the blame on Roman Catholic priests Sunday for strikes and political unrest in northern Spain.

But he charged that the Soviet Union is the real culprit, with a spending campaign of hundreds of millions for propaganda, intrigue, and agents in Spain.

"We are the country in which, and only through our own effort, communism was defeated," Franco told 12,000 Spanish Civil War veterans. "And thus if we don't want to lose such glory, we must resign ourselves to remain being the target of its attacks."

As for the priest, Franco said, they seem to ignore that in Spain the church and state march together. They are well aware of their obligations and duties, he said.

Enemies of Spain profited from the labor troubles, Franco said, "because of the excesses of some Basque separatist priests or clerical mistakes of some hot-headed priests."

He did not explain what he meant by separatist priests or clerical mistakes.

He said, however, the attitude of such priests did not alter the fundamental harmony, between church and state. Some had interpreted the priests' attitude as a sign of division between church and state.

There was a possibility Franco had in mind priests who had expressed opposition to his regime and supported the northern Basque region's claims to independence.

Francisco's attack on the priests came after he is reported to have summoned Enrique Cardinal Pla y Deniel, Primate of Spain, to his palace last Friday and told him some priests were speaking on political matters.

Communists Help

One government official said later the priests wittingly or unwittingly had helped the Communists "who would like to have Spain split and ruined." The government has accused the Communists of taking advantage of labor unrest to try to stir up serious disorders.

Labor sources reported that priests in the northern strike areas had refrained from any mention of the walkouts in Sunday's sermons. They supported the strikers in previous sermons.

In Madrid labor officials expressed the hope the wave of strikes that began six weeks ago for higher wages would diminish by Monday.

They estimated the strike force of 60,000 out of Spain's 10 million workers could drop to fewer than 20,000.

Hardest hit by the strikes were the coal fields of Asturias and the industrial areas around Bilbao. The labor officials said strikers had promised to return to work at several important industrial plants.

Describes Trip As A Bus Ride

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —Malcolm Scott Carpenter, the latest addition to the nation's roster of space explorers, said Sunday his round - the - world journey through space was "as easy as a bus ride."

He rejected any idea that he was tired or confused on the third orbit. But he acknowledged he was preoccupied with the many tasks he had to perform and the sights he saw.

"There's so much to do," Carpenter said at a news conference carried nationally on television and radio. "Everything you see is so awful."

Apologizes

The lean, crew-cut naval officer apologized for the thrilling end of the mission last Thursday when he vanished for 41 minutes and was found floating on a small life raft in the Atlantic Ocean.

But he said he could not explain what caused the Aurora 7 spacecraft to overshoot its target landing area by 250 miles. Perhaps it was the attitude of the spacecraft when the retrorockets were fired, or the power with which they slammed on the capsule's brakes.

"I don't know why it was long," he said. "But we will find out." The favorite son of Boulder, Colo., said he was extremely busy as his epic flight neared its end.

Carpenter told a large group of newsmen in a tent near the site where his space voyage began: "I understand the report came from Hawaii that I was a tired and confused astronaut during the third orbit. If my opinion is worth anything to you, I would say this was not true. I was preoccupied."

"On the third orbit, south of Hawaii, there were six things going on at one time."

Getting Ready

Carpenter said he was trying to get ready for the retrorocket firing sequence. He was looking for the fireflies which astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. had reported during his orbital flight last Feb. 20. He was checking the Aurora 7's attitude—the position in which it was soaring through space. And he was trying to photograph the sunrise.

The report that he may have been tired, or possibly confused, came from an official tracking station.

Carpenter said, in answer to a question, that he didn't know whether the retrorockets had fired properly to bring the Aurora 7 out of orbit. But he said he did not receive "a kick in the back like John Glenn had told me about," perhaps indicating that not all the retrorockets fired or fired with less force than they should have.

Weightless Enthusiast

Throughout his remarks, the Navy lieutenant commander revealed himself a real enthusiast of the weightless state, which he described as restful, serene, and "more comfortable than being in my bed."

"I am ready to go for a two week's orbit," he said.

Carpenter said he was able to create the fireflies, which Col. Glenn had reported, by knocking on the side of his spacecraft.

In saying he was preoccupied, Carpenter explained there were so many things to do that at times some things would slip.

The automatic control system that electronically senses and repositions the spacecraft was acting up from the first orbit on, he said.

Another problem was the low fuel state, Carpenter said. But because he was anxious to do all the experiments and perhaps a little impatient, he may have contributed to the problem, he continued.

"The fuel supply was not the fault of the capsule, only the fault of an impatient man," Carpenter said.

Carpenter acknowledged that he had noticed the problem of improper operation of the control system of his capsule at the beginning of the first orbit but that it didn't concern him at the time.

He referred several times to the tasks he had to perform and the amount of attention he had to devote to them.

"There's so much to do," Carpenter said. "Everything you see is so awful."

Control System

In speaking of the control system problem, Carpenter said: "I did not analyze it through because of the press of the other items we wanted to accomplish on the flight."

Turning to other subjects, Carpenter said that when weightlessness first occurred, he had a temporary feeling of floating — felt that something was not quite right.

Immediately he realized this impression came from the fact he was weightless and from that point on the flight was easier.

"Every function in the capsule is easier because nothing has weight—it was the only time I was comfortable in the restrictive suit."

He also noted that silence descended suddenly as soon as the capsule and rocket separated.

Fireflies

He said that with his hand-carried camera he got pictures of the so-called space fireflies.

He said that on the third orbit approaching Hawaii he accidentally tapped the wall of the capsule and a shower of particles appeared—"a tremendous cloud of particles appeared."

Before that he had seen particles, not only at each sunrise but at each sunset and throughout each orbit.

He said it seemed to him the capsule must be covered by frost and a map on the wall would knock the particles off.

During weightlessness he conducted some movements with both his eyes closed and open and was happy to report "no bad effects through weightlessness."

Son Discusses Rescue Plans Of Eichmann

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The Socialist party newspaper Arbeiterzeitung says a son of Adolf Eichmann discussed plans here with former Belgian Gestapo General Robert Jan Verbeelen to rescue Eichmann from an Israel prison.

Verbeelen was arrested last month in Vienna, where he has lived since the end of World War II. Belgian courts have sentenced him to death in absentia.

Eichmann is under a death sentence for his role in the Nazi mass murder of Jews. The Israeli Supreme Court is to rule on his appeal Tuesday.

Arbeiterzeitung said Horst Eichmann — the condemned man's son — visited Austria twice last year.

Signal Depot To Be Host To Scranton Dental Society

APPROXIMATELY 60 dentists will be the guests of Tobyhanna Signal Depot officials on Monday, May 28, when the depot hosts the monthly meeting of the Scranton District Dental Society.

Colonel L. W. Kale, post commander, and Captain David Layman, dental officer, will be co-hosts to the group, which will include not only civilian dentists from the area, but several noted military dental authorities. Dr. Albert Klein, of Scranton, is program chairman.

Colonel Edmund S. Olsen, chief of prosthetics at Walter Reed Army Central Dental Laboratory, is scheduled to be the featured speaker. Colonel John C. Specker, Scranton dentist now serving at Ft. Meade, Maryland, Colonel Arnold W. Kerchoff, Valley Forge General Hospital dental surgeon, and Major Thomas J. King, Valley Forge oral surgeon, are other military men who will be on hand. The group will be given a bus tour of depot facilities, followed by a social hour and dinner at the Officer's Club. This will mark the first time that Tobyhanna has hosted the monthly meeting of the society. Guests will come from the Greater Scranton area, the Stroudsburgs, Mt. Pocono, Brodheadsville, Mountainhome, and Hawley.

Returnee Under Probe

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Internal Security Committee yesterday questioned a Zelienople, Pa. man, who recently returned to the United States from Russia where he lived and worked nearly three years.

Robert E. Webster, 31, gave up his American citizenship and decided to remain in the Soviet Union where he had gone as an employee of the Rand Development Corp. of Cleveland. Rand sponsored an exhibit in the U. S. Trade Fair in Moscow.

Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., who presided at Thursday's secret hearing, said Webster “is genuinely repentant” and “full recognized that he has done something wrong and ill-advised.”

He said Webster told the committee the best cure for anybody inclined to support the Soviet Union “is to see them (Russians) at work.”

Diet Of Terror

All totalitarian regimes term themselves "People's Republics" or something equivalent. By this camouflage they attempt to make it seem that their primary objective is to advance the welfare of the masses, whereas the capitalistic states exist to provide luxurious living for the wealthy few.

What's the truth of the matter? Well, not long ago Fidel Castro, a confirmed Marxist, imposed the most stringent kind of rationing on the Cuban people. Soviet Russia, for all of its vast land area and population has an acute food problem, as no less an authority than Khrushchev has made clear in public addresses. And in Red China, according to Stewart Alsop, the people are actually slowly starving—and they're pitifully short of other necessities than food.

He writes: "Cloth . . . is rationed at the rate of three or four feet per year . . . A single chicken costs about one-fifth of a heavy urban worker's monthly wage, and one wadded coverlet costs a month-and-a-half's wages." He also says that protein, that vital source of mental and physical health and endurance, "has all but vanished from the diet of most of the people of China."

This is what communism, for all its empty glowing promises, gives the people—while supplementing it with a diet of terror and oppression.

Attraction Of Idle Funds

If a businessman were to take funds earmarked for insurance and to use them instead to expand operations, leaving his business inadequately protected, he could hardly be called prudent.

But what is imprudent in private business may be perfectly all right where the Government is concerned. Or so the Senate Banking Committee seems to be saying in its recommendation for an increase in Small Business Administration loan funds.

That agency has been operating under a $725 million ceiling on regular business loans, and $150 million on disaster loans. The latter funds were available to small businesses hit by natural disasters or forced to move by Federal urban renewal or road projects.

But the agency points out that while the regular business loan fund is being used right up to the limit, the money set aside for disasters often isn't used at all. So in obtaining endorsement of a new loan ceiling of more than $1 billion, the SBA persuaded the committee to authorize combining the two funds so that the money earmarked for disaster use could be used for regular business loans.

Now what this plan amounts to is a sort of back-door way to increase the agency's regular lendable funds. And it serves to remind us that in the world of politics, if any loose cash is lying around nobody is able to leave it alone. Even when it's money prudently set aside against possible disaster.

Knows About Women

On Saturday afternoons, when I go to the opera, I often have tea between Act 2 and 3, with a group that includes one of the world's greatest authorities about women. He is Dr. Virgil G. Damon, who says in "Look" magazine:

"After knowing some 40,000 to 50,000 women, I can say that many were worthy of far more respect and admiration than the men they loved."

It is something of a chore for a man to know one woman in all her changeabilities, but to have ministered to 40,000 or 50,000 of them and to survive to write about it, is an achievement of which few men can boast.

Dr. Damon's specialty, gynecology, is one of the most intimate of all medical relations. Few women bear children, certainly their first child, without an element of fear. Nevertheless, the mother instinct is so strong that women come back to that task, time after time, finding in it the greatest joy that a human female can discover upon this Earth.

It is true that more primitive women are reputed to go behind a haystack, bear their child and go back to work, but also large numbers of such women die of child-birth. And many children are born dead too. We have made such enormous progress in safeguarding both mother and child that such an experience as Dr. Damon deals with is, indeed, an eye-opener to those of us, in this country, who take all our benefits for granted.

Dr. Damon has this to say about the present:

"A young woman doctor recently spoke out at a medical meeting against what she called the old-fashioned horse-and-buggy practice of house calls. She described them as inefficient, time-consuming and uneconomical. All of what she says is true. No doctor likes making house calls today, especially in big cities, where distances are great. You never can find a place to park your car, and the call on the sick patient invariably entangles you in the time-consuming process of refusing hospitalization from the family without being rude. What might have been taken care of in an office in 15 minutes often stretches to two or three hours on a house call."

"No doctor can charge enough to make such calls pay. But I still think they are worthwhile. I grant you that there are selfish people who use a doctor, who have him come to them when they aren't really very sick and could just as well have come into the office. But you can't make hard and fast rules when you are dealing with suffering human beings. There is a place for healing through compassion; the old 'laying on of hands' still holds true."

I saw a story on TV recently in the series "The Defenders," which, I see, won an Emmy. This had to do with a child run over by an automobile driven by a drunken girl. The child's parents would not permit an operation or a blood transfusion and the child died. They said that it was against their religion. I know the value of blood transfusions from having had several, and I know that just as one calls in an architect to help build a house, or an electrician to put in proper wiring, so it is necessary to have a physician care for the human body, for the thousands of parts, for all the chemicals that move about in us. Without proper care, we might, particularly when one has passed the middle years, find ourselves in very grave difficulties.

Dr. Damon is not too strong for group medicine, which is becoming increasingly fashionable to keep prices down he says:

"I can't believe it is in a patient's best interests to share her pregnancy with four doctors, perhaps grow closer to one than the rest and then suddenly have another doctor there when the baby is being born. Nor do I believe that a doctor is doing himself a service when he considers his own comfort ahead of his patient's welfare."

To have served so many women must give a man an extraordinary opportunity to discover the nature of women. I fear Damon is too scientific to generalize. He dodges the issue by saying that he is not a psychiatrist. But then, they, the head-shrinkers, only catch women on the rebound from experience.

Try and Stop Me

John Straley was loitering in the visitors lounge of Doctors Hospital when they carried in an unfortunate fellow who had swallowed a ping pong ball. Told an immediate operation was imperative, the patient demanded a local anesthetic so he could watch.

But he winced visibly when the surgeon made eleven successive incisions. "Why," he demanded, "do you have to cut in so many places?"

"Can't help it," murmured the preoccupied surgeon, still cutting away. "That's the way the ball bounces."

The late head of a big film studio in Hollywood was an ardent dog-lover who thought every picture should emphasize the rewards to be won by clean living and the American way. Unfortunately, most of his productions lacked box-office appeal and the fortunes of his studio declined sharply. "Poor Hugo," sighed one of his big stockholders. "He's selling out our company for a pot of mess!"

Russ Hawley says he's so old he still remembers the time when heroes and heroines in the movies sat up for their love scenes.

"There are seven ways," maintains Shirley MacLaine, "for making an eligible man say 'yes': 1. Find him. 2. Fascinate him. 3. Fondle him. 4. Fuss over him. 5. Flatter him. 6. Feed him. 7. Frame him. If none of these seven works," adds Shirley, "forget him!"

Senior Citizen Kicks Medicare Football

By Mason Denison

Harrisburg — "They make us sound like freaks — some sort of special class of citizens; we're a political football."

And that is the reaction of a "senior citizen" in his sixties who ran into on a downtown street in Harrisburg the other day, his expression generated by the hue and cry being raised over "medicare" — medical care for the aged — and whether or not it should be part of the Social Security program.

The comment of this senior citizen is interesting in many respects, but perhaps the most intriguing was the "political football" angle.

We asked him to elaborate on this point. His contention: Democrats and Republicans in Washington, between their respective "medicare" proposals, are each fighting for the senior citizen vote with their own talkathon give-away points!

We don't necessarily fully agree with our elder brethren but seemingly the point he raised is indeed interesting and food for thought.

The "medicare" hassle unquestionably has been brought into sharp focus in Pennsylvania in more ways than one.

Only this past week the view of the Pennsylvania Medical Society on the subject of the pending King-Anderson bill providing medical care via Social Security was expressed in this column in an exclusive series by Dr. W. Benson Harer, president-elect of the Society. That view in summation: opposition to the pending King-Anderson bill as "premature, unrealistic and dangerous" — plus "(it) would be totally inadequate to meet the health needs of the aged."

It is this very same legislation — providing for "medicare" through Social Security — that the Democratic Kennedy Administration in Washington violently supports.

On this tone the question might well be asked, "where does the Democratic Lawrence Administration stand?" In fact it was asked at the Governor's last press conference. The answer: the Lawrence Administration is supporting the Kennedy Administration down the line on the subject.

What many fail to realize however is that this stand by Pennsylvania's present administration actually is nothing new. A check of the files brings out the fact that just about a year ago — on July 31, 1961 to be exact — Mr. Lawrence puffed off to Washington to personally testify before the House Ways and Means Committee in support of the then, as well as now, pending King-Anderson "medicare" legislation.

As the question recurs in the heat of debate at this moment — some of Pennsylvania's gubernatorial comments a year ago are worth recalling:

Item, "We believe that every American citizen has the right to an equitable income after retirement. It should be provided through Social Security insurance, personal savings and private pensions."

Item, "We know that a massive campaign has been launched against the theory of medical care through Social Security. It is a campaign rife with innuendo and insinuation, half-truths and utter falsehoods. It is an expensive campaign — and if I may say so — the money being spent by pressure groups might better be spent in research grants for medical scientists."

Item, "For my own part — and for the more than one million senior citizens of Pennsylvania — I urge you to give favorable consideration to H.R. 4222 (the same bill up for consideration again this year)."

The foregoing most certainly succinctly underscores the stand of the Lawrence Administration, seemingly a most interesting contrast to that of the Pennsylvania Medical Society as expressed in the series of two articles in this column last week by Senator President-elect Dr. W. Benson Harer.

As to the plaintiff: "they make us sound like freaks — some sort of special class of citizens; we're a political football!" — why not draw your own conclusions?

Instead of tranquilizers we're passing on to you this advice: "The hurrier you go, the behinder you get!"

other said, "Nobody here has shoes. Double the first shipment."

In fairness to the newspapers and to most of the people in Arkansas, the destitute Negro families being sent north by the Capital Citizens Council of Little Rock represent a Machiavellian scheme of a little band of little people

The Allen-Scott Report

Powell Plans Lead In Aid Fight

Washington, May 28 — Representative Adam Clayton Powell, chairman of the House Committee on Education and Labor, is making a dramatic shift in his position on federal aid for education.

The New York Negro legislator, whose committee handles school legislation in the House, is planning to take the lead in pushing federal aid to both private and elementary schools.

Until switching this month, Representative Powell had been one of Congress' most vigorous supporters of President Kennedy's school aid program that limited federal aid to public grade schools.

However, this Administration proposal, although passed by the Senate, has been effectively stymied in the House by the powerful Rules Committee, where the legislation has been bottled up for more than a year. In effect, the Committee's unbending opposition has killed the President's program for this year.

Representative Powell, who has future gubernatorial ambitions in New York, hopes to break this deadlock by joining congressional forces advocating the broader school aid approach.

He is telling Democratic House leaders that he will lead an all-out drive at the opening of the new Congress to pass legislation giving federal aid to both public and private schools.

In preparation for this January school aid push, Powell reported that he is setting up a special Education Subcommittee with the task of acquainting

Congress and the public with the full details of the federal aid now being given private as well as public schools.

Also, the subcommittee will highlight and publicize legal briefs and arguments showing that the first amendment to the Constitution is no bar to Congress' approving federal aid to private schools.

Changing Horses — Representative Powell's new views on federal school aid were carefully spelled out in a little-publicized speech delivered at the Catholic University at Ponce, Puerto Rico, on May 18.

Entitled "Views on Relationships of Church and State in the Field of Education," this significant speech by Powell is being reprinted in the form of a committee document, and thousands of copies will soon be circulated throughout the U.S.

In his address, Powell frankly announced that he is stepping into the "educational leadership vacuum," saying:

"I wholeheartedly dedicate myself to this new area, I pledge to institute action to fill this educational leadership vacuum, and to provide for our national needs and purposes."

"Our legislative efforts shall not infringe upon the neutrality of government in religious affairs, but our legislative efforts shall, however, be made so that every facility, every resource of our nation, every group, and every individual shall be enlisted in the cause of educational advancement and excellence."

"I am convinced that a majority of my colleagues in the Congress are dedicated to the principle that it is appropriate and necessary for the general welfare that the federal government give aid to all students, regardless of their schools."

To support this new position, Powell told his predominantly Catholic audience that his committee is preparing a "Handbook on Federal Aid" showing the long history of aid to private schools.

"Grants and loans to church-related institutions for educational purposes have a long history in our country," he declared. "They antedate the Constitution and have been legislated at an accelerated rate in recent years. As long as I am chairman of the Education Committee, this tempo shall not decrease. In fact, there is a greater reason than ever before to supplement and increase aid to private schools."

In his new school aid leadership role, Representative Powell will get the full backing of Speaker John McCormack, D-Mass., who has been the leading congressional advocate of federal aid for both private and public schools.

The two legislators worked closely this year in securing House passage of legislation providing federal aid to public and private colleges. They now are preparing to repeat this effort in January by passing legislation providing federal aid to all elementary schools.

Hong Kong — President Kennedy is seriously considering furnishing surplus grain to the Chinese Communists through a third party. That's the private report that Seymour J. Janow, Assistant Administrator of the Agency for International Development for the Far East, is giving Congressional leaders being briefed on the Chinese Communist refugee exodus to Hong Kong. One proposal under study by the President, according to Janow, is for the U.S. to turn 10 million tons of surplus wheat over to the United Nations or the International Red Cross for distribution inside Communist China . . . The Chinese Communists are pressing the British government to agree to the stationing of an official Chinese Red representative in Hong Kong "to look after the interests and welfare of the growing Chinese population." So far, the British have refused. . . . Despite the growing famine in Szechwan, Peiping's imports of goods to Hong Kong rose from $180 million in 1959 to $207 million in 1961 . . . The Communist regime regards Hong Kong as "Chinese territory temporarily not under the control of the Peoples Republic of China" . . . Distribution of U.S. surplus food in Hong Kong is handled entirely by the local offices of Church World Service, CARE, Catholic Relief Services, Lutheran World Federation, and the Seventh-day Adventist Welfare Service. Since 1954 through last year, the value of surplus agricultural commodities sent to Hong Kong totaled more than $36 million.

SUN LAMP DEPARTMENT

"I hate to bring this up—but there are a few simple rules for our new employees."

There are seven ways, "for making an eligible man say "yes": 1. Find him. 2. Fascinate him. 3. Fondle him. 4. Fuss over him. 5. Flatter him. 6. Feed him. 7. Frame him. If none of these seven works," adds Shirley, "forget him!"

Charles Denison writes that he isn't trying to hurry Brigitte Bardot into retirement, but he'd sure like to be there when she throws in the towel.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

Just as there is a season for strawberries, roses and straw hats, so there is a season for friends. It's not that one's interest in them ebbs and flows or that they bloom briefly and then fade away, but it's just that the orbits don't intersect except at special times of the year.

In the winter the paths of club members, PTA committees, bowlers and fund drive workers keep crossing and recrossing and you catch snatches of news and swap experiences as you pass.

With warm weather, like the stars, the orbits change and all of a sudden you're renewing acquaintances with golfers, your far-flung family, and a whole new group of luminaries. It's sort of fun, and when the orbits of past summers start crossing for the first time, as at the Shawnee Women's Golf Assn. luncheon, it is also very noisy.

Everybody tries to catch up on six month's news in half an hour and the only way you can do that is to have everybody talk at once. Since everybody seems to have been going at a good clip all winter, it would hardly be honest to say that we've missed each other, but that doesn't alter the fact that it was a happy reunion.

So was the family reunion at the river where a French poodle and a German long-haired dachshund, meeting for the first time, revealed some of the problems to be overcome before ever the European common market runs smoothly. Add a new baby and an about-to-become new nephew-in-law and you have a grand and glorious confusion.

By this time graduations are anything but confusing to Mrs. Papson. With Judy Papson graduating on Sunday, that's the sixth daughter Mrs. Papson's watched graduate from college—and everyone of them became teachers, which ought to be worth a medal or two from the NEA or PTA or something.

Biggest love letter on record turned up at the river this weekend. Taking turns mowing the waist high grass, one young swain, whose name I won't reveal, took advantage of his turn, to cut out swatches which spelled in letters 10 feet high "I LOVE YOU." Seemed almost a shame to cut the rest of the grass after that.

Miss Cyriax Engaged To C. L. Bush

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Cyriax of East Stroudsburg RD 2 announce the engagement of their daughter, Theodora, to Charles L. Bush, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Bush of Star Route, Stroudsburg.

Miss Cyriax, a graduate of Stroud Union High School in the class of 1961, is employed at the First Stroudsburg National Bank. Mr. Bush also attended Stroud Union High School and is employed at Line Material Co.

A Fall wedding is planned.

Msgr. Horan Speaker At Breakfast

Mount Pocono — The sixth annual Communin Breakfast of the Altar and Rosary Society of St. Mary of the Mount Catholic Church was held at Chestnut Grove Lodge, Swiftwater, Sunday, with 60 members present.

Rt. Rev. Msgr. Thomas Horan S.T.D. spoke on "Meeting the Modern Challenge." Chaplain of Marywood and professor of religion for more than 15 years, he has taught thousands of girls. He is to assume the position as rector of the new St. Pius X Seminary at Deltona.

Msgr. Horan warned that it is not enough for parents to teach and preach, they must also show by example. He also urged parents to decide what is best for their own children, regardless of what other children might do, and to explain to them the reasons behind their decision.

Accept responsibility, show firmness, courage, backbone and fortitude, he urged, in building a strong base at home when children are young. "Parents are not alone," he encouraged them "God will be with them."

Mrs. George Reiz presided at the breakfast. Mrs. Thomas Grady Jr., was in charge of the program. Mrs. John Planchock played and sang several numbers in German and English.

Rev. William Cusick, moderator, told of experiences during his two weeks active duty as reserve chaplain, and thanked the women for their help in the church and school.

Penny Supper Successful

Tannersville — Sally Youngken, Noble Grand of the Elsie Longacre Rebekah Lodge, has reported that the recent lodge sponsored penny supper proved to be an outstanding success, due to the untiring efforts of co-chairmen Betty Brader and Francese Ameling and their capable assistants.

Pinewood Derby For Pack Meet

The annual Pinewood Derby marked the May pack meeting of Cub Pack 104 held in the social rooms of St. John's Lutheran Church, Stroudsburg.

In several heats, each den selected a champion: Den 1, David Hammond; Den 2, Arthur Smith; Den 4, Jimmy Yost; Den 5, Clinton Simpson; Den 6, James Edinger. Den champions competed with each other for the title of pack champion, won by Arthur Smith.

The prize for the best appearance and workmanship was won by Bobby Jacobs. Cubmaster William Yost directed the derby in which Victor Holdorf was registrar; James Frailey Jr., judge of weight and measurements; and George McWilliams and William Heckman, judges and David Von Blohn, timekeeper.

Awards Made

The pack meeting opened with a candlelight award ceremony: bobcat to David Lee; Lion badge to Henry Lee and Blaine McWilliams; gold arrow points to Henry Lee and Blaine McWilliams; silver arrow point, Blaine McWilliams; service stars to Henry Lee and James Edinger.

Dinner badges to Blaine McWilliams and James Edinger; Webster's badges and Cub Scout graduation certificates to Dewane Arndt and Daniel Turner.

The Webelos Den attached the meritorious achievement and "on time" registration streamers to the pack flag.

Dr. Bruce Dunlap, chairman of organization and extension for the Pocono District, presented the pack charter to the institutional representative, William Heckman. The pack meeting closed with refreshments for everyone.

Fashions In Orbit Tickets Now On Sale

Tickets for the fifth annual Haddassah-Wyckoff Fashion Show at Tamiment are now on sale. The show "Fashion in Orbit" will be held June 13 at 8:30.

The tickets include refreshments after the show. The chairmen, Mrs. Irving Sommer, Mrs. Arthur Jolley and Mrs. Edgar Liebert, have also announced that unusual favors will be presented to every woman attending. Tickets may be obtained at Wyckoff's gift-wrap department, or from any member of the local Haddassah.

For those who plan to attend dinner at Tamiment before the show, arrangements have been made for serving at 6:30. Reservations must be made with Mrs. Morris Jacobson, HA 1 4404 or Mrs. Sumar Schwartz, HA 1 2860.

Miss Stimson Surprised At Bridal Shower

Miss Barbara Ann Stimson, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Roger was the guest of honor at a surprise bridal shower given by women of the Stroudsburg Methodist Church on Friday night. Miss Stimson will become the bride of Rev. Charles Hinton on Friday, June 29.

She had been asked to pick up her mother from a church meeting, and walked into the shower in the church parlors where the pianist struck up the Wedding March as she entered.

A pink parasol was the centerpiece for the table which carried a cake decorated with scenes representing the interests and hobbies of both the prospective bride and bridegroom, including a pulpit, guitar, a log cabin.

Mrs. T. I. Metzgar was chairman of the party. The women of the church joined in giving Miss Stimson place settings of her silver.

Davis-Hardin Wedding In Virginia

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Priscilla Ann Hardin, granddaughter of Chester G. Booth of Washington, D.C. and East Stroudsburg, and of the late Anna Bray Davey of Bangor, to Craig Brian Davis.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Hardin Jr. of Washington. Her maternal great-grandmother was the late Mrs. J.W. Booth of East Stroudsburg.

Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Davis.

They were married on April 21 in the Graham Road Methodist Church, Falls Church, Va., with out-of-town guests from Stroudsburg, Bangor, Pemberton and Haddonfield, N.J.

The bride wore a gown of white silk organza with a bodice of embroidered Alencon lace which also bordered the chapel train. She wore a seed pearl tiara with fingertip illusion veil.

Miss Virginia Pinkerton was maid of honor. Miss Wood Booth, daughter of Sherwood Booth, formerly of Stroudsburg, was bridesmaid. The Misses Suzanne and Cheryl Davis, sisters of the bridegroom, were junior bridesmaids.

Best man was Barry Davis, brother of the bridegroom. Ushers were John Moore, Neil Baxley and Charles Hardin III, brother of the bride.

The couple will live in Falls Church. They are both attending George Washington University where the bride is a member of Zeta Tau Alpha, national sorority.

THE WYCKOFF SHOPPER

I wonder if you have noticed two impressive windows here at Wyckoff's? One, fronting our Major Appliance department, shows the work of the Salvation Army, paying tribute to the workers, one of whom is "portrayed" by our mannequin in SA uniform. The other is a reverent reminder of Flanders Field, an effective little cemetery the graves of which are marked by small crosses made of popstick sticks. This coming Wednesday is, of course, Memorial Day. If you have not already purchased a Veteran-made poppy from a volunteer solicitor on the street, please do so. Every month has its own particular flower, but the Poppies of May are a veritable bouquet in themselves, for they embody America Bleeding Heart; the national, as well as individual, pledge to "Forget-Me-Not;" and the human heart's way of saying, "Our humble thanks to you—and an orchid for courage."

As though it were not difficult enough to listen to Walter Wyckoff's colorful description of Mexico and the joys of "bargain hunting" there, Edna Brockman of our Wyckoff Travel Bureau further taunts me with a note that this is Fiesta Time in Mexico AND did I know it's cooler in the Caribbean????? In the face of all this, how's a person expected to keep her mind on her work... especially when there's an open door to her office leading to a fire escape and a big, wide, wonderful world.

Walter speaks of marvelous fruit salads in the Mexican hotels, and the various little towns and big cities he saw, one of which has a good sized church for EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR although there aren't enough people around to keep them occupied with worshippers. He describes the palace of Maximilian and Charlotte, and the wide avenue leading away from the grounds, designed on a lavish scale so that the Empress might have a clear and unobstructed view of her husband as he rode "to work" each morning. He tells about an early morning hike with Migis which led them into a valley profuse with tropical plants, and chuckles about his disillusion when he visited The Floating Gardens which weren't at all what their name indicates, but are more like a Mexican Coney Island, with families by the hundreds out for a day of sunshine and fun. Boats, as he tells it, speed along in all directions with everyone hoping that, by some miracle, his will not be rammed and sent to the bottom of a rather smelly canal. He also tells about some very good silver buys one can find in the Silver City of Tasco, and of his disbelief when the hotel began swaying and he discovered it was not the result of a stomach upset but the tremors of a distant earthquake.

It is interesting to hear these things... next best thing to experiencing them. But our Wyckoff Travel Bureau hopes you will have the inclination, time, and money to do your own sight-seeing. Contact them, by calling Wyckoff's or dropping in, for further information about visiting anywhere in the world.

Incidentally, mothers and prospective mothers will wish to visit Wyckoff's today to meet Miss Curlette, representing the Curity Diaper Company. Walter tells us that many of the diapers in Mexico are fairly gay, being made of printed cloth. What's more, they are decorative rather than utilitarian, very often being removed before soiling occurs. Curity, I am sure, would never approve of this, nor would any Mother who knows of the many types of Curity diapers available, all with diaper liners that make laundering easy.

Rentel Paintings Now At Art Center Are Reviewed

By Helen Harrison

The current show of paintings by Rentel continues through the coming week at the Pocono Art Center, above the Penney Store, Stroudsburg. I am amazed that these vigorous studies are the result of only a year's work by Betty Leitner, under the guidance of Marcia Clapp DeRocco, who teaches sculpture and painting at the Center.

Looking over the brilliant oils, my husband selected Roses in Pitcher as his favorite; I think mine is "Flower Reverie", with exciting color masses. There are plenty to choose among — for one, "Flower Market", gay and well composed.

There are also some sketches done by Mrs. Leitner last summer in France, including the attractive water color scene of the beach, with umbrellas blooming like posies, titled "Le Plage". There is even one abstraction — "Resonance" — a good composition which aroused discussion on opening day because many observers felt it might look better hung sideways.

It is interesting that each exhibition at the Pocono Art Center seems to attract a different group of viewers, apparently, as yet, there is no hard core of art lovers in the community which attends all. Among the distinguished visitors at this opening was Dr. Francis Quirk, head of the art department of our own ESSC; and also Victor Riu, a sculptor in stone from Cooperstown. We began to discuss plans for a sculpture show.

Mrs. Smith 83 Years Old

Mrs. Margaret B. Smith of 12 Rose St., East Stroudsburg, celebrated her 83rd birthday yesterday.

Years seem no burden to Mrs. Smith who still does all her own housework and is active in church work, meeting regularly with the East Stroudsburg Methodist Church to make cancer dressings.

And now Betty, on Marcia's advice, is studying in New York at the Art Students' League, submitting to the discipline and competition of metropolitan art classes, accepting the challenge of an experience that must inevitably change her standards. To my mind, this takes not only a serious ambition, it also takes courage.

This exhibition is open to the public on Wednesday afternoon from 3 to 5 — since this is a holiday, perhaps you may find a moment to see the show; also Thursday evening from 7:30 to 9, or by appointment, phone HA 1-0947.

THEY'LL DO IT EVERY TIME

By JIMMY HATLO

Dear Abby

He's Sick, Sick, Sick!

DEAR ABBY: My problem is a little "sick," too. He's allergic to the retailer's profit, insensitive to being skinned, and deaf to your common sense. Get him to a "retail" doctor, but fast!

DEAR ABBY: My parents decided to make a cello player out of my older brother. He hated it and wouldn't practice. He was so bad his teacher said he wouldn't teach him for a million dollars. Well, we had this old cello laying around the house, so my parents are forcing ME to take cello. I hate it. I love music and want to take up the clarinet or some wind instrument so I can play like the school band. They refuse to invest in another musical instrument. Is this fair?

STUCK WITH A CELLO

DEAR STUCK: No, it is not fair. Suggest that they SELL the cello (place ad in your newspaper) and buy a clarinet with the money.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "TRYING TO HELP": Sorry, but I do not write to people with advice at the suggestion of a "friend." If the party you are a t t e m p t i n g to "help" is ready to take advice from me, let him ask for it.

How's the world treating you? For a personal unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to ABBY, care of this paper.

For Abby's booklet, "How To Have A Lovely Wedding," send 50c to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

TV Highlights

HUGH DOWNS will be the new host of NBC-TV's early-morning Monday-through-Friday "Today" program, he will take over in September. John Chancellor will leave for new assignments with NBC News. Downs will continue as star of NBC-TV's popular daytime game program "Concentration."

"Today's" John Chancellor, Frank Blair and Louise King will be at New York International Airport in Queens this morning. The program will originate from the new TWA terminal, which will open officially later this morning.

"Today" will tour the $15,000,000 building which was designed by the late Eero Saarinen. Made of glass and concrete, the structure suggests a giant bird in flight. From 7 to 9 a.m. on chs. 3 and 4.

From 7:30 to 8:30 on channel 6 the Allentown Bi-Centennial Parade will be telecast. There will be 20,000 marchers in this colorful parade celebrating the 200th Anniversary of Allentown. Commentary will be by John Roberts and Bill Webber.

Jane Wyatt and Mickey Rooney are scheduled as guest celebrities for this week on the daytime version of "Password" from 2 to 2:30 Monday-through-Friday.

On "Pete and Gladys" from 8 to 8:30 on chs. 2 and 10, Pete recalls when he and Gladys had rid the household of a college student boarder only to have her nephew move in for the duration of his five-year course at medical school.

Next, on "Father Knows Best" the Andersons have a second wedding ceremony on their anniversary, 8:30 to 9. Bill Dana as Jose Jimenez is featured on "The Danny Thomas Show" from 9 to 9:30.

On "87th Precinct" Detective Meyer Meyer (Norman Fell) blames himself for the escape of a boyhood chum who has been arrested for robbery. Mike Kellin co-stars. Chs. 3 and 4 from 9 to 10.

On "The Andy Griffith Show," chs. 2 and 10 from 9:30 to 10. Buddy Elsen guest stars as a hobo whose happy-go-lucky charm has a bad influence on Opie (Ronny Howard). On "Hennessey" from 10 to 10:30, Bobby Darin guest stars as an entertainer who makes a bad sailor and faces a bad conduct charge.

From 10 to 11 on chs. 6 and 7, Tuesday Wed, Jeannette Nolan and Simon Oakland star in "When You See an Evil Man," on "Ben Casey." The wife of a murdered neurosurgeon protects her daughter with a story of a suicide attempt.

The Daily Investor

Canadian Mutuals

By William A. Doyle
Q. Fuller Brush Co. stock was split ten for one early this year. I understood that, because of the split, there could be more shares of the stock outstanding and that it would be possible for small investors to buy some. I have two brokerage firms trying to buy some for me, but they say they can't get any. Can you tell me why?

A. This is a prime example of a "thin market." Even after that ten-for-one split, there is not a great deal of this stock outstanding. Most of the stock in this company is closely held by a small number of shareholders.

The latest official reports on this Fuller Brush Co. show that the company has 1,534,560 shares of Class A common stock and 129,470 shares of Class AA common stock outstanding.

These two classifications of common stock are somewhat unusual. Each share of each class of stock has one vote, in the election of directors and other corporate affairs. In all other respects, each share of Class AA stock is equal to four shares of Class A.

The latest available reports list only 511 stockholders of Class A stock and 91 stockholders of Class AA stock, with the Fuller family owning 61.26 percent of the Class A and 61.36 percent of the Class AA.

You are trying to buy some of this stock. So, your broker is trying to find someone who is willing to sell some. If none of those stockholders wants to sell, you simply won't be able to buy any.

The present stockholders can't be forced to sell.

The stock is traded in the over-the-counter market. In theory, you should be able to buy some — if you jack up the price you are willing to pay, the "bid" price.

A broker who handles trades in this stock, occasionally, is currently quoting a bid price of $22 a share on the Class A stock. But he points out that he knows of no "asked" price by any stockholder who wants to sell. He passes on the word that he hasn't handled a trade in this stock in nine months.

Q. I held some stock in a margin account with my broker. The broker suggested that I sell it and buy some other stock, also on margin. He bought the second stock for me one day but didn't sell the first stock until the next day. Roughly the same amount of money was involved in both transactions.

Now he tells me that I am supposed to put up additional money as collateral to cover the purchase of the second stock but that I can get that money back after two days. Why?

A. Because of Federal Reserve Board regulations covering margin accounts. If both transactions had taken place on the same day, you would not be required to put up additional collateral.

But when you bought additional stock on margin one day and your "net debit balance" (the money you owe the broker) exceeded the required amount, you are required to put up additional collateral. The fact that you sold your first stock the next day doesn't square away the fact that you exceeded the margin requirements the previous day.

Barrett Branch YMCA Plans Summer Activities

BARRETT — The annual dinner-report meeting of the Barrett Branch YMCA was held recently at Onawa Lodge.

Guests peaked at the dinner was Richard Frantz who spoke on "Service Before Self." He said to many of today's people are concerned with money rather than with what one can contribute.

The members and guests were greeted by Warren Miller, secretary of the board. Rev. John Carter gave the invocation.

The monthly and yearly reports were presented by Robert E. Wilson, Barrett Branch YMCA director.

He reviewed highlights of the year which included summer camp, a card party and a Christmas Dance at Convention Lodge, Buck Hill Falls. He cited the membership campaign as successful and mentioned the Father-Son and Mother-Daughter banquets.

Also included were the August 24 auction sale and the joint board meeting held in conjunction with the Monroe County YMCA, Stroudsburg.

Other successful programs, he said, were Mrs. Englehardt's oil classes, Karen Roth's ballet classes, Dee Crew's adult dancing classes and the Saturday Camp group. Square dancing was held during the Summer and Fall months.

The boys basketball team sponsored by the J.A. Reinhardt Co. were given new uniforms by the company. William Helbig led the volleyball team which played Monday evenings at the Barrett Elementary Center.

Included in the report was a list of the organizations which use the Barrett Branch YMCA as a meeting place.

They were: The Barrett Community Club, Barrett Junior Women's Club, Cub Scouts, American Legion Auxiliary Evans Blitz, Post 922, Barrett Democratic Women's Club, Barrett Council of Republican Women and Barrett Volunteer Ambulance Corps.

It was announced that the building would be painted during the next week by volunteer help.

John R. Wilson, director of the Monroe County YMCA, spoke on the various programs offered by the YMCA.

Rev. John Carter led the rededication ceremony for the board members.

The meeting closed with the Lord's Prayer.

Present for the meeting were: Mr. and Mrs. E. Crothers, Mrs. John O'Neill, Mrs. John Henry, Karl Weiler, Rev. and Mrs. John Carter, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Reinhardt, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Price, Mrs. Lena Swaine, Mrs. Ruth Ford, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Wilson, Richard Frantz, Warren Miller and Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Wilson.

Business enterprises and local homeowners are requested to cooperate in this move to welcome visitors to the Poconos and the success of the program will add to the success of the resort season.

Letters have been mailed to each area resident, reminding the recipient of the importance of making a good impression on tourists and the fact that this is part of the hospitality the area should extend to their guests.

It is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 8 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked numbers give you.

DOCTOR Irl Allison, president of the National Guild of Piano Teachers has announced that a new Center will be opened in Stroudsburg. Mrs. Josephine Chaffler has been appointed chairman of the Stroudsburg Guild. The first Spring Auditions were held on Sunday. Students played for Certificates and for admission to the National Fraternity of Student Musicians.

Since 1929 the National Guild of Piano Teachers has been awarding certificates and diplomas to young pianists through the country and Alaska. Besides its many goals the Guild offers a $100 cash award to pianists who perform for ten years, each year a program of ten memorized pieces. Biennially it conducts the National Recording Festival in which the prizes total $20,000 in cash awards.

Many nationally famous young pianists began their award-winning with the guild. Among them are Van Cliburn, John Browning, Daniel Pollock etc.

The greatest piano competition ever in history and sponsored by the National Guild of Piano Teachers, will be the Van Cliburn Piano Competition to be held in Fort Worth Texas in September of 1962. The first award will be $10,000, with $3,000, $2,000, $1,000 and $500 to the next five finalists. Pianists from sixteen countries have already applied.

The Stroudsburg auditions were judged by Anne Liva of Scranton. Mrs. Liva is now on a judging tour of South Carolina, North Carolina, and Georgia. After the Stroudsburg auditions, Mrs. Liva will judge in Brooklyn, N.Y. She is a member of the Wilkes College Music Department; Chairman of the Northeastern District of Pennsylvania Music Teachers Association and Scranton Chairman of National Guild of Piano Teachers. She has presented her lecture, "demonstration 'Teaching Technique at All Ages Levels' in Music Club programs, in colleges and in Carnegie Recital Hall, New York.

With her husband, Ferdinand Liva, who conducts the Wilkes-Barre Philharmonic and the Niagara Falls Philharmonic, she organized the Young Musicians Society in 1959 and from the two hundred members Mr. Liva has organized the Young Musicians Symphonette of fifty-five instrumentalists; ranging in age from eight through college.

Mr. Liva also tours Europe as guest conductor of leading European Symphonies, including the Royal Philharmonic of London, the Rotterdam Philharmonic, the Berlin Philharmonic and the Berlin Opera Symphony, San Carlo Symphony, Naples, etc.

Hailstorms Crumble Crops

HANCOCK, Md. (AP)—An informal survey of growers Friday indicated that three hailstorms since last Sunday may have caused as much as $1 million in damage to apple orchards in the Appalachian fruit belt.

Peach orchards, however, appeared to have escaped without serious damage in the fruit belt which embraces portion of Virginia, West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Maryland.

Growers said peach trees had not been thinned of excess fruit and enough peaches survived to assure a normal crop this year.

The first storm struck orchards Sunday and the last Thursday afternoon. The most damaging, however, was the one in the early morning hours Thursday which damaged up to 50 per cent of the apples in some orchards of the Hancock area.

In Pennsylvania, damage also was severe in spots. The Reading area of Berks County, especially the Boyertown section, was hard hit by the hailstorms. William Peters,

Survey Shows Increase In Women Workers In Area

Special to the Record

NEW YORK, May 25 — Women in Stroudsburg are entering the labor force in growing numbers.

Government figures show that no less than 1,034 local women, out of a total female population of 2,596 over the age of 14, are now employed or looking for employment outside the home.

They are to be found in factories, in stores, in the professions, in offices and in almost every other area of work.

Details on this feminine march into the labor market, as it affects the local community and other sections of the country, are from the Department of Commerce, which has released data gathered in the course of the recent census, and from the Department of Labor.

Presence Felt

The degree to which women have made their presence felt in the job market is brought out in the official figures, which show that women are now in possession of 40.0 percent of all jobs in Stroudsburg.

The proportion is higher than that found in most parts of the United States, where 32.7 percent of the job-holders are female. In the Middle Atlantic States they average 33.4 percent.

Since 1940 there has been a vast change in attitude toward outside work on the part of women. At that time there were 11 million women in the labor force. Now there are about 23 million.

Married women have been responsible for most of the increase. They accounted for nearly two-thirds of the country's total gain in employment in the past ten years, reports the Labor Department.

Reasons For Working

Many of them went out and got jobs because they had too much time on their hands at home. Household chores were not occupying their day as they once did, thanks to such conveniences as frozen foods, ready-to-cook foods, automatic laundries, dishwasher machines and the like.

As for other married women, they are working simply to support themselves and their dependents and to provide some of the extras that they would not have otherwise.

Of Stroudsburg's female population over age 14, some 39.8 percent are in the labor force. This compares with 34.5 percent in the United States and 35.5 percent in the Middle Atlantic States.

PP&L Executive Attends Senate Hearing As Witness

CHARLES E. Oakes, chairman of the board of Pennsylvania Power and Light Co., testified at a senate appropriations subcommittee hearing regarding a request of $500,000 by the Bonneville Power Administration for preliminary engineering study for a high-voltage transmission interconnection between the Pacific northwest and southwest.

He told the subcommittee it was unnecessary because utilities in the west have been interconnected with power systems in California and neighboring states. Expansion and extension has taken place where growth and economic conditions have made construction feasible.

The spokesman for investor-owned electric utilities said the move was not only unnecessary but would diminish tax revenues at all government levels. The amount paid by electric companies is more than $2 billion annually, or five percent of total federal income taxes from all corporations.

"Government operation of any part of the utility business results in a transfer to other taxpayers of the income tax load that would otherwise be realized," Oakes pointed out.

He continue, "It is the responsibility of the investor-owned electric utility industry to build whatever facilities are required to effectively meet this nation's electric power needs."

Exchange Student To Speak Tonight

NEWFOUNDLAND — Arne Burkhardt, Rotary Exchange Student from Germany, who is a senior at Weatherly High School, will speak tonight at the Newfoundland Rotary Club meeting in Green's Restaurant at 5:45 p.m.

Guests of the club will be the senior boys of Southern Wayne Joint School.

Police said May offered to overlook certain safety requirements in plans for remodeling the Medical Arts Building in Butler.

Investigators said he approached the owner of the building, C. A. Snyder, president of the C.A. Snyder Corp., and offered to swing a deal for a 30-inch mower.

Snyder reportedly contacted state police and told them about the offer. Wednesday, the two men went to a store and the mower was purchased and turned over to May, police said. The arrest followed shortly after.

A hearing has been set for 9:30 a.m. Saturday before Armstrong, May is a Western Pennsylvania area inspector for the State Dept. of Labor and Industry.

CHAT ON BENCH—Bruce Box, left and James B. Curran, both of class of '32, talk over changes they've seen at ESSC. Curran, who is director of special services in the public schools of East Orange, said he was "astounded at the expansion program;" this is the first he's been back in 25 years. Box, who is an administrator in Waymart High School, commented on the "preservation of the beauty of the grounds."

Cerebral Palsy Workers Complete Drive In Area

UNITED Cerebral Palsy of Northampton and Monroe Counties brought its 1962 house-to-house "53 Minute March" to a close today.

Mrs. Seymour Pollan, Campaign Director of Monroe County, reported that $2,440.72 was raised during the United Cerebral Palsy Drive in Monroe County. This was made possible by the sincere efforts of the 283 volunteers working on the drive. The quota for Monroe County was set at $3,000.

The funds raised in Monroe County makes possible the continued services of Mrs. Jane O. Lange as a Home Service Director. She will continue to visit the homes of the handicapped to help with the various complex problems in caring for the cerebral palsied in the home setting. A Development Center has recently been opened in the Bethlehem Area for uneducable hand-capped children who do not qualify for schooling under the State Education program.

Plans are now being formulated for an Adult Workshop for the handicapped cerebral palsied in the area. Monroe County has now made its contribution to the Cerebral Palsy's nation-wide research and educational program in the battle to halt cerebral palsy.

A great service to the cerebral palsied has been performed and the residents of Monroe County can enjoy a large measure of personal satisfaction in the knowledge that they have contributed to so many.

Since there were many residents of our county who were not at home during the "53 Minute March", Mrs. Pollan urges anyone who wishes to aid the cerebral palsied and were unable to contribute on May 22, to kindly mail all contributions to her at the campaign headquarters.

State College Grads Meet To Reminisce

THE sun shone Saturday on the eight-hundred alumni of the East Stroudsburg State College who gathered at their alma mater to meet old friends and to inspect the changes that have taken place on College Hill.

Seventy-four members of the 'golden anniversary class' — the graduates of 1912 — arrived at ESSC to be feted at a special table in the dining hall at noon, and to be guests of honor at the other festivities.

The golden celebrants gave 20 prizes to its members — including one to Mrs. J. L. Bauer of California, "for coming the greatest distance," and one to Miss Ruth Willis, who "is still teaching after fifty years."

In addition to the individual class reunions and the all-class alumni dinner served in the college dining hall, the sports-minded were invited to attend a baseball game between the ESSC varsity and Wilkes College and to participate in tennis and archery matches with students.
